21 March International Day of Forests
HEALTHY FORESTS FOR HEALTHY PEOPLE

The connection between forests and various aspects of our lives is often overlooked, such as when we drink water, take medicine, or build a house. However, forests are essential for sustainable resource management, combatting climate change, and promoting well-being and prosperity for current and future generations. Despite the ecological, economic, and social benefits of forests, they face threats like fires, pests, droughts, and deforestation.

The theme for 2023 is "Forests and health," highlighting the critical role that forests play in maintaining our health by purifying water, improving air quality, capturing carbon, providing food and medicine, and promoting well-being. We must take action to protect these valuable natural resources for the benefit of ourselves and future generations. Rather than simply taking from forests, we must give back and ensure their health, as healthy forests lead to healthy people.

Let's adopt to Environment Conscious Lifestyle; let's Save our Forests by contributing to Mission LIFE
